Fund Manager Commentary

Performance Overview

Looking at contributions from individual names in March, the largest contributors with solid earnings momentum included operator of wholesale site connecting retailers and manufacturers RACCOON HOLDINGS, Inc., a marketing service firm including prints and TV ads as well as an operator of logistics sharing platform for package deliveries and payments, RAKSUL INC. and Kamakura Shinsho, Ltd., a media service firm, that provides end of the life related services. Conversely, operator of existing property distribution platform "Renosy" GA technologies Co., Ltd., a producer of battery materials, Sumitomo Metal Mining Co., Ltd., and an online medical information platform operator M3, Inc. detracted from performance during the month seemingly due to profit taking by investors.

Market Outlook and Investment strategy

We believe that the Japanese stock market will maintain an upward trend, supported by expectations for economic normalisation along with rising uptakes of Covid-19 vaccines. In particular, if interest rates markets calm down, we believe that the trend in favour of growth stocks will become clear again. Positive factors include continued monetary easing in developed countries, economic stimulus measures in various countries and a further recovery in domestic corporate earnings this year, while we are concerned about the new virus variants that may be vaccine-resistant and the intensified frictions between the U.S. and China. In terms of our strategy, given our belief in accelerated digitalisation and the progress in decarbonisation, we are increasing our focus on digitalisation, 5G, IoT, autonomous and electrification of cars, cloud based services, automation, e-commerce and cashless settlement services.
